What Passenger Lists Are Online?

Internet Sources for Transcribed Passenger Records & Indexes

Opening note: If you don't find your ancestor's passenger list online (some have not been indexed or transcribed yet), you can still search offline using the available indexes and microfilmed records. The Finding Passenger Lists Guide is a good starting point for locating US arrivals from European ports.

This webpage is divided into three main sections: US Arrival Records, International Arrivals & Departures, and General Sites. Items marked "requires payment" are part of Ancestry's online genealogy records collection.

United States Passenger Lists & Records (Arrivals)

to New York

New York Indexes 1820-1957...

- New York Passenger Lists Online Index & Images 1820-1957 (requires payment) includes the Barge Office, Castle Garden and Ellis Island periods; also includes digitized images of the passenger lists from the National Archives microfilm
- New York Passenger Lists Index 1830-1892 \(Castle Garden Database\) (index only; some records not yet included; includes some listings for ports other than New York without naming the other port)
- Irish Famine Immigrants to New York 1846-1851 (click on "Irish" when you get there)
This National Archives database covers Irish arrivals to the port of New York for the years 1846-1851. If you have a subscription to Ancestry's US Records Collection you can also search this database at Irish Immigrants: New York Port Arrival Records, 1846-1851
- Ellis Island Database Online 1892-1924
You can search for New York passenger arrivals here from 1892-1924. There are approximately 22 million total records. The site was opened on 17 April 2001. Tip: always try alternate spellings of the name(s) you are searching for.

DANISH DAIRY COOPERATIVE

On March 28, 1885 one of Wisconsin's first incorporated creameries was organized as the Luck Creamery Company. The "Organization Artikler" were published in Danish in the Polk County Press on November 18, 1885, and printed in English about a month later on December 12.

The seven Danish emigrants declared that only members of the corporation could own stock in it, and the sale of one hundred sixty shares at $15 per share was authorized. The first creamery was built eight-tenths of a mile west of here on the north shore of Little Butternut Lake. The first buttermaker was a Danish woman who made the butter in large wooden churns.

In the early days the farmers brought their milk to the creamery in cans which had glass tubes or gauges on the side, marked down to one-eighth inches. The cream as shown by the gauge was measured and paid for by the inch. The cream was then skimmed off and the farmer kept the skimmed milk.

Many groups of farmers adopted the cooperative principle to make dairying a leading industry in Wisconsin.
